Outlook 2018

Demand has been strong in the early part of the year, and our broad exposure to several market segments with different cyclical patterns means that we have a broad and stable demand base.

Looking ahead, I see continuing positive demand from industry and infrastructure.

We have seen a high activity level in new residential construction so far this year, but this is expected to gradually ease off. However, our exposure to new residential construction is small, and the renovation, maintenance and improvement (RMI) sector has historically had a balancing effect on both sales and earnings in periods of declining new construction.

My assessment is that this will not be any different in the future.
